

NABPAC Elects 2022 Board of Directors and Officers

January 28, 2022, Washington, DC – The National Association of Business Political Action Committees (NABPAC), the country’s only non-profit trade association dedicated to promoting, defending, and professionalizing PACs and political action professionals, announced today that it has elected a new Board of Directors for 2022.

Meaghan Joyce, Director, Political & Advocacy Strategy, Global Government Relations at International Paper was elected president of the Board, taking over for outgoing president Tracy Winn, PAC manager at Anthem.

“2021 was a challenging year for PAC professionals, and we are grateful for the amazing leadership of Tracy Winn during this consequential time for our industry,” said Micaela Isler, Executive Director of NABPAC. “I’m thrilled to be working with Meaghan this year as we head into the mid-term election cycle. Her thoughtful leadership and experience on the Board and in our industry ensures NABPAC is well-positioned going forward in 2022 and into the future.”

In addition to Joyce, the rest of the executive committee includes: Courtney Schoenborn (New York Life), first vice president; Bridget Sewell (American Property Casualty Insurance Association), second vice president; Kipp Maloney (National Federation of Independent Business), secretary; John Mason (Altria), treasurer.

“NABPAC has made incredible progress in recent years, and I’m looking forward to continuing that momentum,” said Joyce. “As we enter the mid-term election season and continue to navigate the effects of the pandemic, NABPAC will be a critical voice for ensuring employee-funded and business PACs remain engaged in the political process.”
